Tip of the Month

For safety and security reasons, do not keep your Social Security card on you or in your wallet. Instead, keep it safely at home in a file or safety deposit box.

The best compliment we can get is a referral from you.

Sincerely,

Brian M. Connelly

Cintas Employee Accused of Identity Theft

A Fort Worth, Texas man who drove a document shredding truck for Cintas Document Management did not destroy confidential documents as Cintas was hired by its customers to do. Instead, the man was stealing the documents and selling them to identity thieves.

Cintas promotes its off-site shredding as secure and safe.

The number of potential victims may be in the thousands and the total loss may be in the millions.

Cintas employee, Patrick Doucet's Fort Worth home was searched last week and police seized computers, cell phones and other items after they found an identity victim's check in Doucet's trash.

Court documents indicate this is a multi-state theft ring. The investigation began in January in Atlanta. Police arrested another woman in Atlanta and charged her with writing fake checks in another woman's name.

Fort Worth detectives have confirmed Doucet was a truck driver for Cintas and that the thefts involved Cintas' customers on his route.

All Points Mobile shredding provides on-site document shredding to ensure the security and safety of our customers. This allows you to observe the entire process. The documents are destroyed before we leave the site and you are issued a Certificate of Destruction. We highly recommend on-site document shredding to prevent the type of incident that occurred above.

How To Respond To A Data Breach

Data breaches have more than doubled since 2009. Reported incidents of involving theft of personal information hit 25,566 cases in 2013 up from 10,481 in 2009 according to the Government Accountability Office (GAO).

The GAO has given guidelines on how to respond to such a breach:

(1) Establish a data breach response team

Create a team to oversee responses to a suspected or confirmed data breach.

(2) Train employees on roles and responsibilities for breach

Train employees on their data breach response plan and their roles and responsibilities in the event a breach should occur.

(3) Prepare reports on suspected data breaches and submit them to appropriate internal and external entities

Establish procedures for promptly reporting a suspected or confirmed breach to the appropriate entity.

(4) Assess harm

Assess the likely risk of harm and level of impact of a suspected data breach in order to determine whether notification to affected individuals is needed. In addition, assess what remedial actions might be taken.

(5) Offer assistance to affected individuals (if appropriate)

After the Target breach, Target offered credit monitoring services to affected individuals. Think of ways to mitigate the risk of harm.

(6) Analyze breach response and identify lessons learned

Review and evaluate your response. Hold a "lessons learned" meeting with all involved parties.
